Measuring Support for Equality in the 110th Congress

Dear Friends,

The lesbian, gay, bisexual and transgender community has made unprecedented progress in Congress over this two-year session. For the first time, the U.S. Senate and U.S. House of Representatives both passed hate crimes legislation that provides protection on the basis of sexual orientation and gender identity (the Matthew Shepard Act). The first-ever House vote on the Employment Non-Discrimination Act (ENDA) was held. Since the “Don’t Ask, Don’t Tell” law (DADT) was passed in 1993, no hearings examining the negative impact of that policy had been held until this year. And the discriminatory Federal Marriage Amendment was dead on arrival.

This is a wonderful opportunity to reflect upon these incredible steps forward in our long march toward full equality. The progress made in the 110th Congress on the Matthew Shepard Act, ENDA and repeal of DADT provides critical building blocks as we keep educating members of Congress on the importance of federal protections for LGBT Americans.

These accomplishments would not have been possible without the support of congressional leadership and allies in both the House and Senate. Openly gay Reps. Tammy Baldwin (D-Wis.) and Barney Frank (D-Mass.) worked tirelessly to push for the strongest possible legislation and to educate other members of Congress about the need for federal action. Without their persistent efforts, we could not have achieved so much.

Even as we took these important steps forward, this congressional session also highlighted the ongoing challenges in front of us. The Human Rights Campaign was saddened and disappointed that the House was unable to secure the votes to pass an ENDA that included gender identity protections. Despite intensive lobbying and grassroots efforts by HRC and other allies, additional education is needed to win the votes for a fully inclusive ENDA. Since the ENDA vote, HRC has intensified our grassroots lobbying and education efforts to build support among members of Congress for a fully inclusive ENDA.

Although not the vote we hoped for, the ENDA vote was historic. A strong bipartisan majority of 235 members of Congress sent a clear message that employment decisions should be based on job performance, not sexual orientation. In addition, seven members who are strong supporters of the LGBT community – Reps. Yvette Clarke (D-N.Y.), Rush Holt (D-N.J.), Michael Michaud (D-Maine), Jerrold Nadler (D-N.Y.), Edolphus Towns (D-N.Y.), Nydia Velázquez (D-N.Y.) and Anthony Weiner (D-N.Y.) – voted against the bill because they were disappointed that it did not include transgender protections.

A new Congress and a new president will have the opportunity to make even greater progress. The list of unfinished business is long. We need to have a president who signs the Matthew Shepard Act into law. We need to pass a fully inclusive ENDA. We need to repeal DADT. We need expanded funding in our battle against HIV/AIDS. And we need to expand benefits and protections for LGBT families.

The future looks bright. Working together, using tools like this scorecard, we can build the support needed to advance our broad and diverse agenda.

Sincerely,

Joe Solmonese
President
Human Rights Campaign

A new Congress and a new president will have the opportunity to make even greater progress. The list of unfinished business is long.
